The Breath of Life.

It's a significant fact that the strongest animal if its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs have powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chief study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stevens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by Red Cross Pharmacy. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Mentioned In The Dispatches

JOHN H. CONVERSE.
ONE of the direct-ors of the Real Estate Trust Company of Philadelphia, whose president killed himself and which went into the hands of a receiver soon afterward, was John H. Converse, the millionaire manufacturer and philanthropist. It was upon the petition that the receiver for the wrecked trust company was appointed. Mr. Converse is prominent in the Presbyterian church, as the dead bank president, Frank K. Hipple, also was, and many funds of this church were deposited in the bank. Mr. Converse is president of the Baldwin Locomotive works and is director in several leading financial institutions of Philadelphia, but has not been so active in business for the past few years as formerly and has devoted much of his time to religious and philanthropic work. He has given away over half a million dollars, it is said, to various good causes. He was born in Burlington, Vt., in 1840 and graduated in 1861 from the University of Vermont. He has given his alma mater several dormitory and laboratory buildings, which are among the most attractive architectural features of that institution. He was president of the National Relief association during the war with Spain, and in that position rendered important services. He is noted also as a patron of art.

Governor James O. Davidson, who succeeded Senator Robert M. La Follette as executive of Wisconsin on the latter's elevation to the senate, has now won a victory at the primaries under the direct nomination law advocated by Senator La Follette. By virtue of this victory he will be the Republican candidate for governor at the coming election, and a peculiar feature of the situation is the fact that Senator La Follette favored another candidate. Thus the first time the law he was instrumental in placing on the statute books was put in operation for a gubernatorial canvass the result was contrary to the preferences of its principal author and supporter.

Both Governor Davidson and Governor Johnson of the adjoining state of Minnesota are of Scandinavian blood, but Governor Johnson has the advantage of being eligible for the presidency, while Governor Davidson could never be president, as he is a native of Norway. He was born in Sogn in 1864 and came to America at eighteen years of age. When he reached Madison, Wis., he was practically friendless—a total stranger, with a debt for his passage over staring him in the face. The first summer he worked on a farm. Then he learned the tailors' trade, which he followed for a few years. Next he became a clerk in a store, and five years after landing he opened a general store of his own at Soldiers Grove, Crawford county, which has since been his home. He prospered, but in 1888 incendiaries destroyed his store, entailing a loss of $10,000 above all insurance. In spite of this heavy setback he rebuilt his store. His energy and industry were in due time rewarded by substantial business success, and then came his political career, when his championship of the interests of the people as against those of the corporations led to his advancement to his present post of honor.

Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, who sought to have the Republican convention of the Buckeye State refuse endorsement of the legislative record of Senators Forsaker and Dick on account of their attitude on the president's railway policy, favors choice of the members of the senate directly by the people. Until a constitutional amendment can be had changing the method of election he favors the plan which has been tried in Illinois and some other states of voting at the primaries for a party candidate, the party majority in the legislature being bound to respect the will of the rank and file when so expressed.

Senator Forsaker now declares that he also favors this plan. National interest attaches to the controversy between Representative Burton and his sympathizers and Senators Forsaker and Dick and their followers because Mr. Burton is credited with being in favor of Secretary William H. Taft of Ohio for the presidential nomination in 1908, while the two Buckeye senators are generally represented to be opposed to the Taft boom. Indeed, Senator Forsaker is generally supposed to have presidential aspirations himself.

Wilbur J. Carr of the state department had occasion to call at the house of a neighbor late at night. He rang the doorbell. After a long wait a head was poked out of a second floor window.

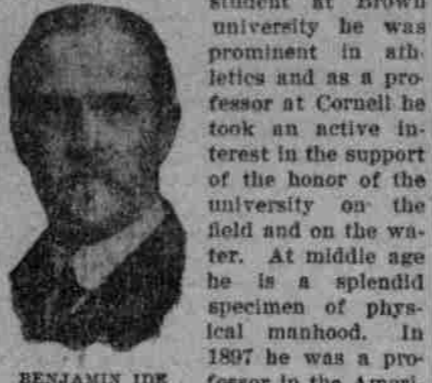

"Who's there?" asked a voice.

"Mr. Carr," was the reply.

"Well," said the voice as the window banged shut, "what do I care if you missed a car. Why don't you walk and not wake up the people to tell them about it?"

President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the California State university, who opposes nude models for art classes in that institution, used to be professor of Greek at Cornell. Cornellians were wont to say that he taught "Greek and athletics." He was an enthusiast both as a Greek scholar and as an athlete and an upholder of athletics among the students. When he was himself a student at Brown university he was prominent in athletics and as a professor at Cornell he took an active interest in the support of the honor of the university on the field and on the water. At middle age he is a splendid specimen of physical manhood. In 1897 he was a professor in the American school of classical studies at Athens and one of the judges at the Olympic games held in the Greek capital that year.

President Wheeler asserts that his love for athletics is a classic passion and that the athletics of which he is enamored are not the pent-in gymnasium athletics, but the free for all out of door games of the Greeks. He believes the Greek idea is the dominant note in modern civilization, and he wants college sports conducted on the time honored Athenian plan.

President Hadley of Yale tells a new class room story of Professor Thomas Lounsbury, who retired from the faculty not long ago. He said:

"Professor Lounsbury was teaching an inattentive class. He turned to them and said: 'Gentlemen, bear with me a few minutes. I have yet a few pearls to cast.'"

The president gets a good many letters from the men who served under him in the rough riders. This one came recently from New Mexico:

Dear Colonel—I am in a heap of trouble, and I write to see if you can help me out. Last week when I was shooting at my wife another lady stepped in range, and I hit her. It was an accident. I wasn't shooting at her at all. I hope you will write to the judge and tell him to let me go.

Samuel R. Gummere, United States minister to Morocco, through whose cleverness the American authorities obtained possession of Paul O. Stensland, the fugitive Chicago banker, has a post whose duties are often peculiar. The sultan of Morocco is superior as a ruler to some of his predecessors, but he is a young man of many freaks and fancies, and to get on well with him the representative of the United States has to keep his wits with him all the time. In the Stensland case it was proposed that the sultan be asked to give up the defaulting bank president that it would be an act of courtesy toward the United States. But it seems the sultan does not feel especially well disposed toward America, and it was feared he might balk at a proposition to do an act of special courtesy to it. Minister Gummere was in doubt how to proceed, when friends supplied him with a hint. It is understood that these advisers were the representatives of France in Morocco. They suggested to him that he put forward the argument that the extraterritoriality which he holds about and protects American citizens who get into trouble in Morocco applied also to fugitives from justice."

The minister made his claim with all the gravity possible, and the sultan was convinced. He agreed to turn Stensland over to the Americans, and Mr. Gummere and Assistant State Attorney Olsen of Chicago at once began looking about for a vessel to bring the defaulter to this country.

Minister Gummere was United States consul at Tangier when the Perdicaris kidnapping occurred, and his efficient conduct during that episode resulted in his promotion to his present post. Now he has another feather in his cap.

Norris Brown, Republican nominee for governor of Nebraska, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. H. Brown of Des Moines, Ia., and was born in 1863 on the banks of the Maquoketa, near the town of that name, in Jackson county, Ia., and in that stream learned to swim and paddle his own canoe.

After graduation from the Iowa State university he practiced law at Perry and in 1888 removed to Kearney, Neb. He was elected county attorney and almost before he got through with that office was nominated by the Republicans for congress. Though he was defeated, he cut down the usually large Democratic majority, and in 1900 he became deputy attorney general. In 1904 the Republican convention nominated him for attorney general without another name being mentioned for the place, and he was elected by 40,000 plurality.

As head of the legal department of the state Mr. Brown made an exceptional record. His first big victory was a railroad suit, in which he recovered $750,000 for the people of Nebraska.

Lobster.
The London hospital is inclined to hold that lobster is not so indigestible as popular fancy thinks it. It is, however, less nutritious than the average fish.

The Serpent.
The Roman goddess of health always bore in her hand a serpent. The serpent was the emblem of Esculapio, the deity of physicians, and in Roman folklore it is said that during a great pestilence in Rome he appeared in that city in the form of a serpent and stayed the plague.

THE PLAIN TRUTH

What More Can Barre People Ask Than the Plain Truth?

When well known residents and highly respected people of Barre make such statements as the following, it must carry convictions to every reader:

Alvin F. Smith, retired, living at 19 West street, Barre, Vt., says: "I have never relapsed into the desperate condition that Doan's Kidney Pills rescued me from eight years ago. I told in a public statement at that time what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me and every word was true. When one is well up in years and suffers terribly from pains across the back which are especially bad when stooping over, and a remedy is found which brings positive relief, it is no wonder that he should recommend it to others. Doan's Kidney Pills, sold at E. A. Drown's drug store, brought me prompt relief from my trouble, and although during the years which have elapsed I have had other attacks, I have always used Doan's Kidney Pills at such time and never in vain. Of course, I hardly expect an absolute cure, but I can certainly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone in need of such a medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Tennessee Comedy.

A comedy entering upon its twelfth successive season must have merit. The New York Herald had the following, concerning "A Romance of Coon Hollow" when it was produced at the Fourteenth Street Theatre in September, 1894: "It is styled a romantic comedy but it has a melodramatic flavor, being provided with thrilling incidents and exciting situations, and embracing some very realistic mechanical effects which served to enthrall the spectators. The piece was well staged, with every attention paid to detail. The audience was very friendly, and that they were well pleased with what they saw and heard may be inferred from the heartiness and frequency of the applause bestowed, and by the recalls with which the leading performers were favored during the evening. The scenes representing 'Coon Hollow,' the steamboat race, and the cotton compress in operation were very realistic, and elicited merited applause, while the negro dances and choruses in the third act awoke the audience to enthusiasm. Some very beautiful and novel electrical effects were introduced. 'Coon Hollow' with the original New York scenery, including a troupe of colored gamblers and singers is announced for next Wednesday evening at the opera house. Tickets Monday night."

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliancy vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate woman's organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingridients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native American medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve tonic adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

Dr. Pierce may be consulted by letter free of charge. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Woman's Health

Every woman may be attractive. Bright eyes, pink cheeks and red lips are her nature-given right. A sallow skin, lack of animation, low spirits and weak nerves may be avoided by the use of Beecham's Pills, a remedy that well deserves the confidence of every woman. Again and again they have proved to be invaluable at those recurring times when so many women feel debilitated and suffer from nervousness, headache and depression. It is wonderful the way these pills assist Nature and relieve the suffering.

Every woman who values health and good looks should become a user of
